STORRS HENS KEEP UP EGG PRODUCTION

Hot Weather Seems to Offer No Handicap in 40th Week.

In spite of the hot weather the birds in the contest at Storrs, during the fortieth week, managed to lay 2,355 eggs, or a yield of 4.46 per cent. This is only 70 eggs less than last week. The Orecons again came in the lead with a yield of 54 eggs. A pen of White Leghorns entered by Lamon Farm, Lebanon, Pa., were second with 51 eggs to their credit. Pen 24, White Wyandottes owned by Mrs. R. W. Stevens, Stillwater, N. Y., was a close third with 50 eggs. Pen 1, Barred Rocks, entered by Merritt M. Clark, pen 21, White Wyandottes entered by Grayman Farms, Westville, N. H., and pen 49, Rhode Island Reds from the W. Mansfield Poultry Farms, Attleboro, Mass., were tied for fourth place with 49 eggs, while pen 30, of White Wyandottes, owned by Cook and Porter, East Hampton, Mass., were fifth with 48 eggs to their credit. As can be seen the heavy breeds did their share with five out of the seven best pens to their credit.

For the past few months there has been more or less unrest among poultrymen both as individuals and as organizations. All over the eastern section of the country people felt that the price of feed had been too high, the price of poultry products too low, that there was need for organized effort in buying and selling. As a result of this feeling, the New England Poultry Producers Exchange has been organized with offices in Boston and the National Poultry Federation has been formed with headquarters at Washington. In view of such unsettled conditions and the feeling on the part of many poultry farmers that their poultry was no longer profitable, the management of the contest began to believe that perhaps there would not be the same interest in laying competition another year as has obtained heretofore.

The fact is that the college now has over 30 applications and only a total of 100 can be received, and this three months before the next contest opens. Breeders from a dozen states are already planning to send birds to Storrs next November.

The three best pens in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

SHOWS PRETTY CATCH OF BLACK BASS.

Jewett City Expert Brings in Four Fish—Total Weight 13 3/4 Pounds.

George S. Brown of Jewett City, formerly of Norwich and well known in eastern Connecticut as an expert salt caster, as well as writer of many instructive articles on the sportmanlike method of taking fish on artificial bait, apparently has but little difficulty in securing the wily black bass.

When his neighbors see his red run-bait starting off towards one of the many lakes that surround Jewett City they cancel all orders placed at the markets and rarely get disappointed. In truth, the appetizing odor of baked black bass is getting quite common. Wednesday was surely no day to go out for bass, at least that it what the old-timers said, but just to show what knowledge of bass habits and proper handling of artificial bait would do Mr. Brown spent one hour and a half—just ninety minutes—in casting a lure. The net results were sufficient to stop all traffic on the main street of Jewett City when he returned. It was a good catch and to see the real fish was far better than to hear a lot of much better fish stories. He had just four fish, caught out of five strikes. The weights were 2 3/4 lbs., 3 1/4 lbs., 2 1/4 lbs. and 5 lbs. Total weight, 13 3/4 lbs. It is a well known fact that they can play ball in Jewett City. It also appears that they can
